Born a Genius

Disease Threatens to Cut Short a Noble Career

But Hood's Sarsaparilla Restores Good Health.

Little May Bentley is an accomplished elocutist and natural born speaker of only 17 years of age. She is the only child of a family who, before the public, has given a noble career. Her mother, however, did not exempt her from an attack of a disease of the blood. Her own words tell the story: "C. I. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass."

"I heartily join with the many thousands that are recommending Hood's Sarsaparilla. I had been troubled for many months with a disease of the blood. I was compelled to leave school upon the doctor's advice. He thought it was the only thing to save my life, but I

Continued to Grow Worse.

I was persuaded finally by a friend to try Hood's Sarsaparilla. The use of one bottle acted as readily upon the blood and I began to improve. After the use of three bottles the gathering around me and I am cured of my former trouble. I can now live and work as usual. I am truly grateful to Hood's Sarsaparilla. LITTLE MAY BENTLEY, Shelbyville, Ind., Jan. 1, 1900.

Views on Death by Prominent Frenchmen.

(New York Herald.)

Death that one subject of supreme interest to human beings, has been occupying the thoughts of several eminent Frenchmen recently. Le Journal, of Paris, thought that it would be a good idea to interview the intellectual leaders of France on this subject, and as a result some striking expressions of opinion have been published in that paper. In an English dress, and somewhat condensed they read as follows:

"I maintain that we should think often of death if we desire to have at all times a fairly correct conception of the things of life. A Damas, Paris."

"If death is an evil, it is an indispensable evil, and, as a matter of simple justice, ought not humanity to be subjected to the same lot which it metes out to the inferior orders of creation? We must one day disappear and pass into Paradise, hell, Narvans or nothingness. But as for that, let each one believe as he will. You don't expect me to speak about the beyond, do you."

William Bouguereau,

"Member of the Institute."

"Death is the quarter of an hour after life's banquet which Rabelais speaks of. I sincerely hope that you will ask me on the day of the next carnival what I think of life."

Julius Claretie.

"I believe that the creative spirit of the world and of the Infinite can neither be conceived nor judged by human thought. The creative spirit does not desire that before we die the secret of life should be revealed to us."

Rosa Bonheur.

"According to the ancient myth, death and love are brothers: the one gives life and the other takes it away. In a word, death is the necessary end of every act and every form of being. Without it the world would be insensible, immobile and, according to our conceptions of things, a mere void."

Berthelot,

"Secretary of the Academy of Sciences."

"Death is the close of a more subtle life. In the flower it sets free the perfume, in the chrysalis the butterfly, and in man the soul."

Juliette Adam.

"If there were no old age death would be an abominable thing, but, as there is old age—H. Meilhac."

"Death is only the end of life. It is good, because it frees us from the imbeciles and the canaille, with whom we are forced to come into contact."

J. L. C. Jerome.

"Death is not a gate which closes; it is a gate which opens. The present life is made clear by the future life. Death is less sombre than exile, because the tomb is only an open gate to another world where each one finds again his fatherland. We salute the dead man who passes by us, considering him as a traveler who goes ahead of us."

Arene Housaye.

"Death does not exist. What we call death is nothing but the passage of a completed past into a future which is beginning. A. Mercie."

"I consider death as something very disagreeable and inevitable, and that we should endeavor to obtain as much as possible out of it for our benefit. We should then always endeavor to live as though we were destined to die on the morrow."

Henry Greville.

"If death is quick and violent there is no time in which to become afraid of it; it comes through old age or illness. Nature takes care to steal away our physical and moral strength little by little, and we cross the threshold as easily as one glides out of a dream in slumber. The important thing for us is to live as honestly and as usefully as possible, and then, when our hour has come, to go forth without any fuss."

Andre Theuriet.

The wife of Mr. D. Robinson, a prominent lumberman of Hartwick, N. Y., was sick with rheumatism for five months. In speaking of it, Mr. Robinson says: "Chamberlain's Pain Balm is the only thing that gave her any rest from pain. For the relief of pain it cannot be beat." Many very bad cases of rheumatism have been cured by it. For sale at 25 cents per bottle by J. H. Orme & Bro., Druggists.

Congress Will Do No Work, Says

Henry Watterson.

Omaha, Neb., December 4.—Hon.

Henry Watterson, in Omaha today, speaking of the President's message, said:

"Nothing will come of it. Congress will do nothing at all, and if the Republicans are wise they will simply pass the appropriation bills and go home. With different political majorities in the two Houses and Mr.

Cleveland in the Presidency, it is life to hope for any agreement upon important measures of legislation. It must be remembered that our national banking system rests upon the national debt, and that if the national debt is wiped out we will be out the whole national banking system with it. That is one of the best banking systems in the world, and ought to be maintained."

Christmas and Chrysanthemums

When stately chrysanthemums are in their prime, Christmas thoughts are in the air; and the happy combination of both in Demorest's Magazine for December makes it an ideal Christmas number. Page after page of handsome illustrations depict various phases of Christmas pleasures, and a timely article on "The Infant Christ in Legend and Art," embellished with numerous and beautiful reproductions of the Madonna by modern painters, gives some curious legends about the Christ-child, and similar legends about a virgin born saviour that exist in all the religions of the East. There is a superbly illustrated paper on the Atlanta Expedition; stories by Gilbert

Parker and Joseph Haines are among the fiction; there are Christmas poems, and lots of suggestions about Christmas gifts and entertainments, and every one of the departments is replete with timely and valuable information. In addition to all this, there is a beautiful picture of "Chrysanthemums," a perfect reproduction of the water-color by the eminent artist Paul de Longpre, which is given as a Christmas Supplement. Everyone who possesses the lovely "Yard of Panies" and

"Yard of Roses" needs this to complete a trio of pictures that cannot be surpassed for decorative effect; and anyone may obtain it, also a December number of Demorest's, by cutting out this notice and sending it, with twenty cents in stamps, to the address below. The original painting of "Chrysanthemums," which is valued at $1,000, is to be given to the person who, previous to April 1,

1896, obtains for Demorest's Magazine the greatest number of subscribers. This is an unprecedented offer, full particulars of which are given in the December number. Demorest's is published for $2 a year, by the Demorest publishing Company, 110, Fifth Avenue, New York.

World Coming to an End

Seventh Day Adventists believe that the Turkish crisis foreshadows the end of the world. They say that the Mohammedan power is the one meant in the sixth chapter of Revelations, to which was to be given power to torment men five months, or 150 years, in prophetic time, when it was to gain supremacy and be given power to kill men 361 years and fifteen days. The Turkish power falls all these conditions, for it was founded by Osman
